

Also in Bavaria there are the numerous railway stations which are connected by a thick railway network in the rail traffic with each other. The Munich railway station is one of the biggest German railway stations and belongs to the most important interchanges in the trans-European traffic. Besides, comes that Munich as well as Nuremberg are bound to U-road nets and city railroad nets which run in a wide catchment area. Here you see our videos.